Completion of Afterpay and Touchcorp Merger

Afterpay Touch Group is pleased to announce that the merger between Afterpay Holdings Limited (Afterpay) and Touchcorp Limited (Touchcorp) under Afterpay Touch Group as a holding company, has been successfully implemented, effective 6 July 2017.

Executive Chairman Anthony Eisen said, “The Afterpay and Touchcorp merger represents a significant milestone and will enable Afterpay to be fully integrated from a technology perspective and boost the growth and earnings potential of the combined business.

I am excited by the prospect of what Afterpay Touch Group can achieve with the expanded skill set and resources now working together. We have a highly talented team and we are confident that the management structure sets us up well for maintaining a focused approach to business growth and performance while at the same time bringing the companies together from an operational perspective and realising merger synergies.

We can already see the benefits of the combined management team working together to accelerate expansion and improvement projects currently active within the group.

The current platform will also be an enabler to what is now assessed to be a significant opportunity to expand the Afterpay business in Australia and overseas markets. A systematic evaluation of further expansion opportunities is currently taking place.

The Touch businesses in the key mobility, health and retail convenience sectors will continue to receive full executive support and are expected to benefit in due course from the combined platform benefits and innovation focus of the merged group.”
